

absolutely no friction among the heirs and that there would be no complications over the division of the estate he did not mention Miss Cameron's name.

"I do know that Miss Cameron holds a position of respect in the Hawley family. She is a young woman of between thirty and thirty-five years of age, she has absolutely no claim on the estate. She has made no claims, and her name has not been mentioned in any manner. She has six months, however, in which to file a claim if she has any."

Miss Cameron was still at the Hawley home today with Mrs. Walter R. Crandell, wife of one of the nephews, and several other members of the family.

Mrs. Adeline Crandell, wife of Frederick Crandell, who is heir to one-fifteenth of the Hawley estate, was released from the County Workhouse on Blackwell's Island at 7 o'clock today after spending almost three weeks as a prisoner convicted and sentenced for disorderly conduct and malicious injury.

Mrs. Crandell had taken rooms with Mrs. Margaret Bianchi at No. 1219 Eighth avenue, and a strenuous row Mrs. Crandell had with a daughter of Mrs. Bianchi led to her arrest. Upon her arrival at the foot of East 121st street in the Correction Department, she refused to discuss the case which had led to her imprisonment. She was met at the pier by her sister, Miss Mary McMane of No. 271 West One Hundred and Forty-fourth street.

Mrs. Crandell said she had not heard a word from her husband. She had been informed, though, that he had borrowed $100 to buy a suit of clothes immediately he had learned of his inheritance and was still out somewhere trying to find an outfit to meet his fancy. None of Mrs. Crandell's people had been able to trace him beyond the point where he got the $100. Their opinion was that he was celebrating his good fortune.

Arrived at the home of her sister and mother, Mrs. Crandell said of her husband's sudden transition from poverty to riches:

"It is going to be a splendid thing for our children. That is all I can say. They can all have every advantage and a splendid education. That is enough to make any mother happy."

SHE DOESN'T WANT THE PRIV. OF LIES OF LIFE.

"After all I've been through money means much, but it will not mean for me the buying of automobiles and all sorts of things that are not necessary. I haven't given that a thought. My real happiness in my life is that I will be what I can do for others. We have been in such circumstances that we were constantly in need of help and those who could afford the least have been most kind."

"My husband's break with his uncle came before our marriage. It was away back in 1891, when I was working in the Southern Pacific office as a telegraph operator. My husband was also employed there. When I got my vacation I went up to the Catskills. Mr. Crandell had had his vacation, but he followed me in disobedience of his uncle's wishes. When he got back he was fired. I kept right on working. Fred and I were married, but the real trouble started when he tried to see me at the office. Mr. Hawley wouldn't have him around. I was in the office when he came, but Mr. Hawley had me transferred by the Western Union people."

"My husband has been too busy to come and see me since the death of Mr. Hawley, but I expect a visit from him some time today. Our children are all in Chatham with relatives and will remain there until money matters are settled. What we will do then I cannot say."

Mrs. Crandell told later that she had not heard from her husband since her arrest. Her father, who was involved in her fight with Miss Bianchi, and that he had neglected to support her in any way when she faced a prison term. This afternoon Mrs. Crandell telephoned to all her husband's relatives she could reach, the lawyers of the Hawley heirs, his place of employment and several of his friends, but could get no trace of him.

Until yesterday afternoon Mrs. Crandell was in ignorance of the amazing change in her husband's fortunes and had no inkling of the fact that she was the wife of a millionaire.

Augusta Chohan approved this afternoon the bond of Frank H. Davis, William P. Hawley and Walter R. Crandell as executors of the estate of Edwin R. Hawley. A bond for $200,000, signed by the International Surety Company, the Empire State Surety Company, the Third Surety Company, the American Surety Company and the New England Casualty Company, was approved. The formal order naming the three executors was signed by the Surrogate.

Under the new arrangement the estate will be held intact during the lives of two of the heirs, and the whole estate will be directed by the executors.

WOMAN OUTWITTED STATE TO GET LIQUOR LICENSE

Hotel Normandie Cafe Still Going During Fight in the Courts.

How the ingenuity of a woman completely outwitted the State Excise Commission was revealed in the Supreme Court today. It all came about in this way:

A license to traffic in liquor at the hotel Normandie was granted by the Excise Commission. The license was issued as Nos. 124-126 Broadway. By an order of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court this certificate was revoked April 7, 1911, on the ground that the resort, then known as "Kiki McCoy's," was disorderly.

Ellie Reich decided to put one over on the Excise Commission, and she did. There appeared an application for a liquor license at No. 129 West Thirty-fifth street, and was signed by John T. Reich. The Excise Commission granted a certificate forthwith.

Since then the Excise Commission has learned that the "north side" of the premises at Nos. 124-126 Broadway, as described in the Reich license, and the "west side" of No. 129 West Thirty-fifth street, as described in the Reich license, are one and the same. Justice Paul was convinced by the problem and denied a license to John T. Reich. Another motion was made today for a reargument of the case, but decision was reserved.

SUBWAY DIGGING ON BROADWAY TO BEGIN IN 10 DAYS

First Shaft of Section No. 2, From Park Place to Walker Street, to Be Sunk.

FIND HISTORIC RELIC.

First Underground Car Ever Run Here Rotting in Old Tube at Murray Street.

While ten days—the time designated in the contract being sixty days—was being used to begin on the Broadway section between Park Place and Walker street, before that time the Public Service Commission will have authorized contracts for other sections. The Department of Public Works, which will build the first section of the Broadway section, known as section No. 2, is assembling its equipment.

The contracting company, through Mr. Standford, today said sinking the first shaft might be begun before ten days, if preliminary work had not to be considered. While the street surface is to be disturbed this will be done at night, and each morning will find the openings plank over, so that street traffic will be uninterrupted.

When the whole force of the Degrade Company is at work the job will be pushed night and day. As soon as steel is ready it will be put in position.

FIND FIRST SUBWAY CAR AS IN TOMBS.

Officials of the Public Service Commission and members of the contracting company yesterday entered the old tunnel at Murray street, which was built four years ago—the first subway on Manhattan Island. Tradition had it that when the old subway was explored would be found the first experimental car, placed in the tube to demonstrate the practicability of operating an underground railway by means of compressed air. The car was found by the explorers, but age had reduced it practically to splinters.

This pioneer underground railroad, which was never used, was built about 1880-1870 under a franchise granted in 1868 to the Beach Pneumatic Transit Company to provide for the transportation of letters, packages and merchandise in the cities of New York and Brooklyn and the North and East rivers by means of pneumatic tubes to be constructed beneath the surface of the streets and public places. The charter was amended in 1870 to permit the company to construct, maintain and operate an underground railway for the transportation of passengers and property.

$10,000,000 SUBWAY WAS BUILT FOR ONE BLOCK.

The capital stock of the corporation was fixed at $10,000,000. Its route was to be from the Battery, under Broadway, to its junction with Central Park and Eighth avenue, with a branch under Madison square and Madison avenue to and under the Hotel New York. The route was to be an eight-foot Beach pneumatic tunnel at Broadway and Warren street and a section was built to the southern side of Murray street.

Litigation developed and by a decision of the Court of Appeals in 1889 in the case of John Jacob Astor, et al. against the Beach Pneumatic Transit Company, which succeeded the Beach Pneumatic Transit Company, the Act of 1873, authorizing the company to use its tubes for railway purposes and all subsequent Acts relating to it were declared unconstitutional, on the ground that the Act of 1873 did not contain in its title, "An adequate description of its purposes." In its decision the Court said that no pneumatic tubes had been constructed, and that is a fair inference from the admitted facts that the system for the pneumatic transmission of property was before the year 1873 found to be impracticable.

"It had been tried in various parts of Europe, but had proved a failure, and for the general transmission of property or passengers was in the year 1873 not where in use."

The original grant, however, was upheld.

MISS ELSS, WHO STOLE TO GET FINERY, IS RELEASED.

Confidential Clerk, Who Took $2,000 From Employers, Freed From Tombs on Probation.

Miss Ada M. Elss, twenty-two years old, who as confidential clerk for the real estate firm of Joseph W. Chapman & Co., of No. 24 West Twenty-third street, $2,000, was released from the Tombs on probation today by Judge Richmond of the Court of General Sessions. Miss Elss pleaded guilty several days ago to an indictment charging grand larceny. She has been in the Tombs since her arrest Jan. 30.

Benjamin Spelman, a law firm of Spelman & Thomas of No. 19 Broad street, was appointed to judge Crain for duty for the young woman. Mr. Spelman admitted Miss Elss had taken the money from her employers to satisfy her desire for good clothes and good times along Broadway, but declared she had been very much abused by those who were now anxious to see her punished.

At the time of her arrest it was said Miss Elss had gambled some of the money she had taken from her employers in horse races through a poolroom in the house she would make a big winning and would come back with thousands of dollars. Judge Crain today the young woman was taken in charge by Miss Maud Miller, the probation officer, and Mrs. Andrew Holmes, her mother, who lives in Howard avenue, Englewood, New Jersey.

"TED" MARKS, BROADWAY BEAU BRUMMEL, WHO DIED AT THE HOTEL METROPOLE

MORSE SEEKS NO REVENGE ON HIS FINANCIAL FOES

reassigned his office. After that Dr. Weaver was in charge of the case. Upon Mr. Morse's removal to the hospital at Fort McPherson he was under the care of Dr. Baker and three physicians sent there by the Government at Washington—Dr. Birmingham, Russell and Pauntieroy. In Atlanta, when his condition became very serious, Dr. Davis and Dr. Ekins of that city were called in, also by the Government.

"In the matter of future plans of Mr. Morse, that rests with the physicians. It may be that he will not be able to go to Europe for the bath, as he hopes. If the doctors advise against it, of course, he will not undertake the journey."

The morning mail brought Mr. Morse many letters of congratulation and good wishes from his friends, and several visitors called at the house. To the latter he was invisible. He wrapped himself during the trip from the South he is maintaining now, and it is unlikely that any one except members of his immediate family will be permitted to see him before he starts for Europe.

It is natural that a man of Mr. Morse's years—especially one who has undergone enforced confinement, however that may have been ameliorated—should be fatigued by so long a railway journey, but beyond fatigue Mr. Morse was quite as well today as when he alighted from the Birmingham special last evening.

MANY MESSAGES CENSORED BEFORE DELIVERY.

In addition to the letters sent to Mr. and Mrs. Morse, several telegrams were delivered at the apartment. Numerous inquiries also came by telephone, but these were not transmitted to the Morse apartment unless Mrs. Morse was well assured of the identity and intent of the caller. But to all inquiries word was sent briefly to the effect that Mr. Morse was passing a comfortable day and resting.

There is much interest in Mr. Morse's exact status, so far as the law and his citizenship are concerned. What he received from President Taft was a commutation of sentence. His conviction was for a misdemeanor, which does not deprive him of his rights of citizenship. His status at present is just what it was before he was convicted and sent to prison. However, had Morse been convicted after Jan. 1, 1909, when the offense of misappropriation of the funds of a national bank was made a felony, he would have been deprived of the right to vote and also of certain other civil rights.

Mr. Morse's status was made quite clear by United States District Attorney Henry A. Wise, who said that as Morse was convicted of only a misdemeanor, an absolute pardon, carrying with it a complete restoration of all his rights of citizenship, was not necessary. So Morse may now vote as any other man who has not fallen out of the law.

The records of the Department of Justice show that in former convictions of fraudulent dealings has ever received a full pardon. Sentences have been commuted, as in the cases of Morse and Walsh, but there has not been the grant of a pardon.

"Woolridge's report had it that C. P. Williams of Stonington, Conn., disavowed Brandt for dishonesty. We gave just found Mr. Williams at the Ritz-Carlton. He says he never employed Brandt to his knowledge and never discharged any servant for dishonesty."

Mr. Morse is a sick man," said Dr. Fowler yesterday. "He is suffering from chronic bronchitis, pneumonia and other ailments. He is very weak and his heart is bad. He has bright disease and hardening of the arteries. He is now seventy years old but he has the arteries of a man of eighty-five. He has improved, but there is no telling how soon he may die."

SUSPENDED AFTER ARREST.

License Inspector Identified as Keeper of Alleged Disorderly House

Chief Wallace of the Bureau of Licenses was suspended from duty yesterday by J. Galmair, an inspector of complaints, on a charge that the inspector has been the keeper of a disorderly house. The suspension is the outcome of a raid upon the Manhattan League Club in West Twenty-eighth street Jan. 27.

The alleged proprietor of the resort, who was arrested, gave his name as Michael Roscoe. From court a spectator sent word to Chief Wallace that the prisoner was really Galmair. Roscoe was released on bail and his trial set for Feb. 15. Later Policeman Steinert was summoned to the bureau, and he identified Galmair as Roscoe. Galmair's arrest was taken and he was notified to appear before Chief Wallace for trial Feb. 16.

Galmair was appointed from the competitive list July 2, 1910. His salary is $1,200 a year.

"TEDDY" MARKS MAKES FINAL EXIT AT METROPOLE

Broadway's Beau Brummel Dies After Picturesque Career in Theatrical Life.

WELL KNOWN ABROAD.

Promoter of Vaudeville Sunday Night Concerts Too Sick to Say Good-by.

Broadway lost one of its most picturesque figures today when Theodore D. Marks, known to the theatre world as "Teddy" Marks, rang down the final curtain at the Hotel Metropole, where he had lain ill with cirrhosis of the liver for four weeks.

You all know Ted Marks, even if you never met him. Remember the old Sunday night "concerts"—virtually vaudeville shows—held at the Broadway Theatre and later at the American Theatre season after season? Remember the curious, wiry, little figure in frock coat, clamorous vest, horseshoe diamond pin, bristling mustache, silk hat and white ornament in his button-hole? That was Ted Marks. And save in summer, when he would blossom out in the sauciest of straw saliors, he never was seen in any other costume.

Ted Marks was more than fifty years old. He had been in the theatrical business more than half his life. He had done everything an old-time showman has ever done—except, perhaps, act. And no one ever caught him acting, though Broadway shook its sides once over the rumor that he was going to appear in a vaudeville sketch written around himself.

For the past ten years or more Marks has been a vaudeville agent. Every spring, regularly as clock work, he would sail for Europe to look over the field of vaudeville and variety acts of sensational character and import the pick of them for American vaudeville managers. While abroad he usually spent several weeks in London, at the Adelphi, a little theatrical hotel back of the Cecil, where he foregathered with the American actors and managers and the vaudeville and variety men and all the bodge-podge of the bohemian world in which he was so prominent and well beloved a member.

In New York his headquarters invariably were in the Metropole. When the old Metropole was torn down and while Considine was rebuilding, Ted Marks wandered from hotel to hotel. He told everyone he had no home.

But the new Metropole came up on Forty-third street and Ted was one of the first to take possession of a room. There he was always to be found until noon, when he usually arose and went out for a stroll. When asked about this little walk Ted once remarked: "I find that the early morning walk is good for my health."

Since he took to his bed four weeks ago Marks has been visited every day by a number of his old friends. Yesterday his condition became so grave that his physician, Dr. Heinrich Stern, ordered that no one be allowed to see the sick man. Marks passed out without saying good-by. Some of the leading managers had planned a big benefit for him.

Another tourist from the West called on Col. Roosevelt at the office of the Outlook to-day and delivered the delegation from a Western State to the colonel. The tourist was W. W. Rich of St. Paul, and the delegation he delivered was that of Minnesota.

By what authority Mr. Rich made the delivery was not stated. He is not the National Committeeman from Minnesota, nor is he Chairman of the Republican Committee of that State. In fact Mr. Rich's political activities are a matter of mystery down in this part of the country.

Nevertheless he delivered the Minnesota delegation to Col. Roosevelt. It must be understood, however, that this is a February delivery. When it comes to making the July delivery in Chicago, Mr. Rich may not be so confident as he was today.

"I told the Colonel," said Mr. Rich, "that he would have the support of Minnesota for the nomination. We don't want Taft out our way because he tried to force reciprocity on us and hurt the farmers. We have always liked Roosevelt and while we are sorry that Senator La Follette's health has given way we feel glad to turn to the Colonel because he is physically and mentally able to lead the fight and win."

Mr. Rich did not say what the Colonel said to him and when Col. Roosevelt saw the reporters he declined to talk.

TROOPS ON GUARD WHILE MILL STRIKE LEADERS ARE TRIED

Crowd Besieges Court at Lawrence Eager to Hear Case of Eitor and Giovannitti.

HAYWOOD IS CALLED.

Labor Chief Summoned by Prosecution as First Witness Refuses to Answer.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 9.—With troops guarding the police court here today, Strike Leader Joseph J. Eitor and his lieutenant, Arturo Giovannitti, both of New York, were called for a continuance of their hearing on the charge of being accessories to the killing of Anna Lopiz, who was shot in a strike riot at a night school. Both men have been in jail since their arrest, having been denied bail.

There was a big throng at the court doors, many being mill strikers, but all persons except those having business at the trial were turned away.

HAYWOOD, CALLED AS WITNESS, REFUSES TO ANSWER.

At the request of counsel for the defendants, District Attorney Henry C. Atwell made a preliminary statement as to the Commonwealth's case.

The prosecutor said that the bullet that killed Anna Lopiz was fired by a tall Italian man, Oscar Benoit. The bullet missed the officer, but inflicted a fatal wound on the woman.

About thirty witnesses were sworn for the Government. William D. Haywood was the first witness called. He gave his home as Denver, Col. Asked if he knew anything about an organization known as the Industrial Workers of the World, he refused to answer on the ground that he might incriminate himself. He was excused.

TWO MORE WITNESSES SHOW HOSTILITY TO COURT.

Angelo Rocco, a high school student, who said he was financial secretary of the local branches of the Industrial Workers, proved to be a hostile witness. In the opinion of the prosecutor, attempts to have him say that Eitor was sent for, or that Eitor had ever said that he was an official of the union, resulted in negative answers at the point that he might incriminate himself. He was excused.

The trial on Jan. 25, the most serious day of the strike, were described by Capt. John J. Sullivan of the local police. Through questions of the District Attorney, the Captain told of seeing Eitor during the early morning at the head of a crowd of strikers near where the trouble occurred.

Police officers said that Miss Lopiz was killed by a tall Italian who shot at Police Officer Oscar Benoit. After the shot missed the policeman, the bullet struck the woman in the chest. The same Italian stabbed Benoit with a knife.

CHAUFFEUR WHO RAN DOWN BROOKLYN WOMAN HELD.

Charles Burton Admits Striking Mrs. Hawthorne When He Is Arrested in Home.

The Brooklyn police to-day arrested the chauffeur of the taxi cab which ran down and fatally injured Mrs. Margaret Hawthorne, a provision office in the Brooklyn Court of Special Sessions, in Flatbush avenue on Wednesday evening. The man is Charles Burton, twenty-one years old of No. 6 Fourth avenue, Brooklyn. His arrest was brought about by the fact that the motorman of a passing car took down the number of the taxi cab when he saw that an accident had happened. The number was 62 and the taxi belonged to Roscoe & Brennan, owners of the Mohawk Garage, No. 185 South Portland avenue, Brooklyn.

Burton was arrested at his home while at luncheon by Detectives March and Murphy of the Brown Street Station. He said he had been called to the Flatbush avenue terminal of the Long Island Railroad on Wednesday evening to take four passengers to a restaurant in Brooklyn. He was on his way there when he struck Mrs. Hawthorne. Thereupon his four fares left him and he took the taxi back to the garage. Burton was arraigned this afternoon before Magistrate Reynolds in the Butler Street Court.
